

The National High Magnetic Field Laboratory

is a large building where scientists from all over the world come to work.

The magnets here are the strongest of their kind in the world.

High magnetic field research is done in all areas of science: biology, biomedical, chemistry, geology, engineering, materials science, and physics.